DISNEY'S 101 DALMATIANS KIDS

DIRECTOR'S NOTES

Bringing 101 Dalmatians to life has been an exciting and rewarding journey. As my first time directing, I've learned so much throughout the process – and I couldn't have done it without the support of my incredible team. Every kid in this cast is so talented, creative, and full of energy, and it's been such a joy to watch them bring these characters to life. Their dedication, along with the amazing work of the crew and production team, helped shape this show into something truly special. I'm so proud of what we've created together. Thank you for being here – we hope you enjoy the show!

BEN SHALLEY

SYNOPSIS

Pet owners, Roger and Anita, live happily in London with their Dalmatians, Pongo and Perdita, stalwart dogs devoted to raising their puppies. Everything is quiet until Anita's former classmate, the monstrous Cruella De Vil, plots to steal the puppies for her new fur coat. The Dalmatians rally all the dogs of London for a daring rescue of the puppies from Cruella and her bumbling henchmen.

ROMEO AND JULIET

DIRECTOR'S NOTES

Romeo and Juliet is deemed one of Shakespeare's greatest romantic tragedies, but when we really dove into the text we started to ask the key question "Why?" Why is there violence? Why is there war? Why do we hate? In the words of a young fighter "Our families tell us to hate, we hate". Though we had many moments of giggles, Shakespearean Insult competitions, and awesome sword fights, the cast never lost the serious of the story, that children were hating children, children were killing children all because of an unknown hate that was passed down to them. I am so proud of the hard work each and every student put into their roles and I know that we are watching some truly talented actors in the making. Thank you to all of the cast members, to my Stage Manager Arianna, and to everyone for their support of this show. "Parting is such sweet sorrow ...".

PAMELA MORRIS

SYNOPSIS

Teenagers. What are ya gonna do. They fall in love at the drop of a hat—always with the very person Mom and Dad can't stand. And in the case of Romeo Montague and Juliette Capulet, their families have hated one another for as long as anyone can remember. Except ...no one actually remembers why. Grownups act that way sometimes, huh. This fast-paced adaptation of Shakespeare's play tracks the star-crossed lovers and their cross-purposed families through the tumbling courtship to its tragic conclusion—storytellers firing off comments about premature marriages and the folly of old men at war. A perfect landscape for boisterous swordfights and gender-bending casting. Girls play boys with pointed reminders to the audience of all-male casting in Elizabethan times. Payback, say the storytellers. The audience is prodded to stop the tragedy at several points, but alas, too late. The conclusion? Violence is a stupid choice so mend your fences before you hit the parking lot.
